MR. J. H. LANGLEY

Strongly Advises All Conductors and Motormen to Take

Mr. J. H. Langley, one of St. Louis' hist known street car conductors on the Cass avenue line, tells what 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' has done for him and advises all his fe low-workmen to keep a bottle in the house at all times, and to take a few doses as a preventive when they feel they are catching cold, which, if neglected, is almost sure to cause catarrh or run into pneumonia.

Mr. Langley's latter is given below:

This is the time of the year to catch cold. Neglect it and it will soon start you coughing and finally settle on your lungs, and in many cases turn to Pneumonia and then Catarrh. Hence the old saying, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. So if you have a cough or cold don't delay, but go to your nearest drug store for a bottle of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron and start taking it at once.

A bad stomach or a system full of malaria makes you feel bad all over. You feel tired and ensily exhausted, feel restless and don't sleep good at night, get up if the morning sometimes feeling even more tired than when you went to bed; you have no appetite; you feel cross and iritiable; it's hard for you to keep your mind on your work. This is all entirely wrong, and a few doses or a bottle or two of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron will brace you right up, for its great stimulating properties make you feel good after the very first dose, and after you take a single bottle you bocome a De Lacy friend, and you are so enthusiantic that you begin recommending it to their friends, and this is where it has gained its world-wide reputative and its enormous asis.

Large pint bottles one dollar, by drugsist does not keep it send one dollar for one bottle or five dollars for six bottles, and it will be sent by express, charges prepaid, by the De Lacy Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Railroad Securities Discovered in Safe Deposit Box of Maximilian Hershel, Making His Entire Estate Worth $950,000 - Mrs. Georgi, the Woman Whose Parents Were His Lifelong Friends, Will Inherit $195,000 of Fortune.

MRS. WILLIAM GEORGI.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

New York, Dec. 12.-Seven hundred and eighty-three gilt-edged first mortgage rall-road bonds, worth at their market price to-day approximately $783,000, were found in the safe deposit box of Maximilian Hershel, when it was opened. These, with ninety-three other bonds of the same grade, which are held by another trust company, bring the value of the Hershel

Mr. Hershel, who was an aged recluse lied in St. Luke's Hospital last July, no person having had any idea that he was the possessor of great wealth.

The discovery of his riches means not that Mrs. William Georgi, of No. 90 Hamilon place, is $195,000 wealthier, and only because her parents had been lifelong friends of Mr. Hershel, to whom she always had shown unfailing kindness.
While no will was left by Mr. Hershel, and, although he had declared a few days before his death that his desire was that all his property should go to Mrs. Georgi, it has been discovered that six heirs survived him. Through their attorneys they have conferred with Mrs. Georgi, and by a harmonious understanding it was agreed that these heirs should be classed as four branches of the family, and that Mrs.
Georgi should be considered as the fifth branch, as far as the division of the estate is concerned. So it is that, while four-fifths of the estate will go to his next of kin, one-fifth becomes the right of Mrs. Georgi.

HER UNSELFISH THOUGHT.

estate was large, and this she repeated, "was because we loved him and he needed our care. We had no thought of gain. We would not now think of doing anything that might deprive his rightful heirs of their just share of the estate."

Those who will share with Mrs. Georgi in the fortune are relatives, many of whom never saw him. Those who had known him in life had not seen him for forty years, for it was that long ago that he came to this country from Germany. All of them are across the water now, with the exception of a nephew, Adolph Hershel, who came here soon after his uncle's death.

To him, by the agreement, will go one-fifth of the estate; a like share will so to Bernard Hershel, a brother of Maximilian, who is now in Mannheim, Germany; one-tenth will be the share of Maximilian, who is now in Mannheim, Germany; one-tenth will be the share of Maximilian Harff, a nephew, whose home is in Cologne; one-tenth to Mrs. Johanna Rudensberg, a grandniece, who lives in Crefeld; another tenth to Mrs. Elizabeth Alsberg, a niece, who is in Amsterdam, and a similar share to her sister, Mrs. Wilhelmina Hirschhorn, whose home is in Mannheim. It was not until some time after the death of Mr. Hershel that there came to those who had known him, a hint that he was more than ordinarily well off in this world's roods. That he had a box in the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company's vaults, at No. 129 Broadway, was no secret, as the key was found among his effects. But when his papers were acculinized carefully there was found a methodically prepared list of railroad securities, the value of which was calculated roughty at 11.000,000. There was nothing to establish bevond doubt, however, that he was the owner of these securities, or that they were in the safe deposit vault.

renxo Semple, of Coudert Bros. Then it was ascertained that there was no will, and, as there were witnesses to Mr. Hershel's assertion that he wanted all his possessions to go to Mrs. Georgi, the usual endeavors to ascertain if there were any relatives were made. This brought to light the heirs who were abroad, and one of them, Adolph Hershel, a nephew, came to this country. Both were then appointed as administrators of the estate, filing bonds of $250,000.

Some delay was occasioned in the obtaining of the required consents for the opening of the deposit box, but all was ready yesterday afternoon and Mr. Semple sent for Mrs. Georgi. In his office she met Adolph Hershel, and together they went to the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company. Awaiting them was a representative of the State Controller, one from the American Surety Company, which is on the administrators' bond, and another from the firm of J. & W. Sellgman & Co., bankers in this country for the foreign heirs.

With the turning of the key in the lock it was found that the box was filled with papers assorted methodically. Even the lawyers were surprised when they unfolded security after security, and at a casual glance it was seen that the original estimate of $1.00.000 was not far out of the way. First mortgage bonds of various railroads were taken from envelopes, among others some of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, the Eric and the Chesapeaks and Ohlo. Mr. Semple counted until he found there were 73 of these securities, and that task alone took him more than an hour. There were receipts and much memoranda on business enterprise in the box, but no will was found.

Mr. Semple counted until he found there were 73 of these securities, and that task alone took him more than an hour. There were receipts and much memorands on business enterprise in the box, but no will was found.

As this wealth was unfolded, Mrs. Georgi said not a word, and she was by far the calmest of those who looked on. Tears welled into her eyes, and her thoughts were seemingly with the aged friend who in his inter days had set his mind on rewarding her for her unfailing kindness to him. When Mr. Semple had bundled the bonds and securities into a satchel, Mrs. Georgi evinced no desire to accompany him to his office, where a me when Mr. Semple and Mr. Hershel had made out a table of the securities into a satchel, Mrs. Georgi evinced no desire to accompany him to his office, where a new list was to be compiled. Instead, she boarded a car for her home

When Mr. Semple and Mr. Hershel had made out a table of the securities they had found in the box and had compared it with that left by Mr. Hershel, it was discovered that six of the bonds enumerated by the aged recluse were missing.

Mr. Semple accounted for this by saying they probably had been taken from the box by Mr. Hershel after he had completed his list, and had been deposited with some broker as collateral for a loan.

LIBT A PRIVATE MATTER.

Mr. Semple declined to make public the he knew he would have to file it as administrator. He said:

"Together with these 783 bonds, which are first mortgage railway bonds, such as now are held entirely for investment, there are ninety-three bonds of the same grade belonging to the estate which are now held by the New York Security and Trust Company. This makes 876 bonds, all told, and we have estimated that their market value is $250,000."

"How is this to be divided?" he was asked.

"There are six heirs who belong to four an agreement between the family and Mrs. Georgi, she is recognized as another branch of the family; so that, instead of the estate being divided into quarters, it will be separated into fifths, of which Mrs. Georgi will get one."

After he had enumerated the other heirs and their respective shares Mr. Semple was asked if there was any probability of a legal light over the estate.

"There will be no litigation," he replied. "There is perfect accord between Mrs. Georgi and the members of the family as to the division of the estate, and we will go shead according to the laws governing the administration of intestate estates among the next of kin. This is much better than any fight in the courts, which might not be settled for years. We will advertise now for creditors, if there are any, and will take all legal steps, so that in six months the estate will be divided as agreed upon."

When he was Zi years old, Maximilian Hershel left his home in Germany after a difference with his parents and started for this country. That was forty years ago, and in a London hotel he met Mr. and Mrs. August Simon, who had just been married and also were coming here. They journeyed on the same steamship and became such good friends that Mr. Simon aided the other financially.

Mr. Hershel everged in the tobecon bust.

LAID UP RICHES. Mr. Hershel engaged in the tobacco business and was very successful. To his friends a daughter was born after they were here a year, and Mr. Hershel often said Isabella always would be as a daughter to him. This daughter is now Mrs. William Georgi, her husband having been assistant secretary of the New York Building Loan-Banking Company. Her father was dead at the time of her marriage and Mr. Hershel took his place at the cremony. He often had expressed a wish when she was younger to adopt her legally, saying he never would have a child, as he could not afford to marry, but her parents would not listen to this.

Soon he gave up the tobacco business and became a stock broker, having a seat in the Stock Exchange. Although he prospered, he lived frugally, as if anxious to save all for the daughter of his old friends. When two sons were born to her he wanted to adopt them, but for some reason this was not done. Fifteen years ago he retired from business and soon thereafter he became a recluse, avoiding society and keeping much to his room, in No. 85 Madison avenue. But he visited Mrs. Georgi frequently and she did all she could to make his declining years happy. When he was stricken with fever, in July last, she visited him daily, taking to him the delicacies of which he was fond, and when he was trable to help himself she had him removed to St. Luke's Hospital. When the physicians saw there was no hope for him they asked him if he had attended to his earthly affairs.

"Yes, everything is attended to," he told them. "I want Eella to have it all." ness and was very successful. To his friends a daughter was born after they

San Francisco, Dec. 12.-As the climax of a long life of mistrust in the honesty of mankind, Riccardo Skinner chose a method of bequeathment that is as unique as it is out of the ordinary. Mr. Skinner died several days/ago at an early hour at No. 239 Montgomery street. That he had been expecting death for many months is evidenced by the fact that he made a will on June 2, 1803, and sealed it in an envelope. This he tacked to the head of his bed and there it remained until some time after his death.

The letter and will were addressed to a local undertaker. In the letter were the directions as to how the money he left to defray his burial expenses was to be found. I have used S. S. S. for Catarrh of the inner ear, and have found it an excellent remedy for same. I had been troubled with this disease for years and tried many things in an effort to get relief, but nothing did me any permanent good until I began S. S. S.
